

Harrison Paradoxical Leadership Competencies

Harrison's leadership behavioural competencies enable your leaders to compare their own behavioural tendencies to proven leadership competencies. Available for both Emerging and Senior Leaders, they provide a framework for adjusting their behaviours to maximize their effectiveness.

Many organizations profess to have behavioural competencies, however leaders often...

- do not fully understand what leadership competencies actually mean in practice
- are not aware of how their behaviours impact others or think they are already displaying the competency
- believe their own strong characteristics are strengths, when in fact some are actually "derailers"
- do not know how to adapt their behaviours in different situations to improve leadership effectiveness

Leadership deficiencies do not show on your balance sheet, but dramatically impact it by...

- creating disharmony and costly employee turnover
- causing employee conflicts which hinder the organization's ability to compete
- damaging your company's reputation, thus making talent acquisition more difficult
- stifling innovation, creativity, and employee engagement
- failing to establish internal talent pipelines by hoarding and suppressing talent

Respectful Candor (Communication)

The tendency to communicate in a respectful and straightforward manner
